Harnessing the Power of Sustainability Reporting

19th April 2022,
Tuesday,

3pm to 4pm.

Complimentary.

Limited slots available.
Registration is required.

With the global push for Sustainability Reporting and the benefits that Sustainability Reporting brings to both investors and companies, the Singapore Exchange (SGX) launched the Sustainability Reporting listing rules and the Sustainability Reporting Guide (the SGX Guide) in June 2016. Entities listed on the SGX are required to prepare an annual Sustainability Report which describes the organization's sustainability practices with reference to environmental, social and governance (ESG) issues with effect for any financial year ending on or after 31 December 2017.

Understanding the sustainability reporting requirements of your organization can directly impact upon a company's success or failure. Fundamental risk management sustainability reporting knowledge is almost compulsory.

Key Learning Points

By the end of the session, you will learn:

- The Essentials of Sustainability Reporting
- United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)
- SGX Sustainability Reporting Guide
- Significance for Accountants and Auditors
- Why Sustainability Reporting? (Profit, Planet and People)
- Planet and Action Plans
- Recent Trends and Developments in Sustainability Reporting

About the Speaker

Wee Kwang is a Certified Sustainability professional who has spoken on various platforms including international conferences on Sustainability Reporting. Driven by his passion in sustainability issues, he strongly believes that finance professionals and accountants are in the position to influence and advocate businesses in embracing and adopting sustainable practices in the core areas of Environment, Social and Governance. His main areas of expertise include financial statements reporting, corporate governance review, Enterprise Risk Management and Internal auditing.
